Index of Articles for 2001

COMPETENCIES

Dietetic education: Is it keeping up with industry trends? 17:10
Teaching excellence, 18:2

EDUCATION, PATIENT AND CLIENT

Counseling children versus adults: What is the difference? 17:7
Documenting resident education in LTC, 17:11
Food and drug interaction education, 17:9
Latex allergies: Safety issue for patients and employees, 18:2
Medical jargon and legalese: Constant threats to patient's bill of rights and other communications, 18:1
Patient and family education and continuum of care, 17:9

EDUCATION, STAFF

Accurate heights and weights: Train everyone to get it right, 17:12
Aggressive nutrition intervention in LTC: Staff training is key to ensuring positive outcomes, 17:6
Developing easy-to-read materials, 17:8
Dysphagia assessment in long-term care: Protocols for training nurses to evaluate residents, 17:5
Staff development, 18:1

EDUCATIONAL AND PROFESSIONAL PREPARATION

Developing easy-to-read materials, 17:8
Dietetic education: Is it keeping up with industry trends? 17:10
Performance improvement, 17:10
Teaching excellence, 18:2

FOOD PRODUCTION AND SERVICE

Determining price structure, 17:8
Fighting the battle on two fronts, 18:3
Finger scanning: High-tech solution and others keep customers moving fast, 18:1
Infection control and management, 18:3
Latex allergies: Safety issue for patients and employees, 18:2
To trayline or not to trayline—that is the question, 17:10
The rolled sandwich: A simple and versatile holiday treat, 18:4
What service is all about, 17:7

FOOD SAFETY AND INFECTION CONTROL

Fighting the battle on two fronts, 18:3
HACCP and enteral feeding: The blue dye controversy, 17:8
Infection control and management, 18:3
Latex allergies: Safety issue for patients and employees, 18:2

HEALTH CARE INDUSTRY

Common infections in older adults, 18:3
Diabetes in the United States, 17:8
Dietitians in administrative roles, 17:9
Repeat customers, 18:2

HUMAN RESOURCES

See Management and Human Resources

JOINT COMMISSION/HCFA

Assessment of patients, 17:6
Care of patients, 17:7
Continuity of care: What does it really mean? 17:9
Disaster planning, 17:12
Documenting resident education in LTC, 17:11
Framework for meeting standards, 17:7
Infection control and management, 18:3
Information management, 18:2
Joint Commission's disease-specific care program, 18:2
Leadership, 17:11
Management of the environment of care, 17:12
Patient and family education and continuum of care, 17:9
Patient's rights and nutrition screening, 17:5
Performance improvement, 17:10

Random unannounced surveys, 17:8
The 2002 Joint Commission survey: An arduous mock survey can help you prepare, 18:4
Top type Is for 2000: 'Nutritional assessment' listed for hospitals, behavioral health, home care, 17:11

LEGAL ISSUES AND LEGISLATION

HIPAA protects patients' rights to privacy, 18:2
LTC has become a risky business, 17:11
New staffing regulations, 18:1

MANAGEMENT AND HUMAN RESOURCES

Alternate work arrangements, 17:7
Dietitians in administrative roles, 17:9
Executive leadership: A new age demands new skills, 18:4
Gap analysis: A method for assessing leadership development needs, 18:4
Human resources, 18:1
Infection control and management, 18:3
Leadership, 17:11
New staffing regulations, 18:1
Retaining good employees in tough times, Part I: What do employees want? 17:5
Retaining good employees in tough times, Part II: Six strategies for retention, 17:6
Retaining good employees in tough times, Part III: Five more strategies for retention, 17:7
Staff development, 18:1
Who's watching the store? 18:4

NUTRITION SCREENING, ASSESSMENT, AND CARE PLANS

Accurate heights and weights: Train everyone to get it right, 17:12
Aggressive nutrition intervention in LTC: Staff training is key to ensuring positive outcomes, 17:6
Assessment of patients, 17:6
Back to basics, 17:12
Common infections in older adults, 18:3
Continuity of care: What does it really mean? 17:9
Care of patients, 17:7
Common misconceptions about nursing home residents, 17:6
Complications of hyperglycemia and hypoglycemia, 18:2
CPT codes for MNT services, 17:6
Diabetes care: Collaboration produces evidence-based performance measurements, 18:2
Diabetes in the United States, 17:8
Dysphagia assessment in long-term care: Protocols for training nurses to evaluate residents, 17:5
Fighting the battle on two fronts, 18:3
Food and drug interaction education, 17:9
Latex allergies: Safety issue for patients and employees, 18:2
Liquid nutritional supplements: Research shows it is best to involve patients in the selection process, 18:1
Making a difference with MNT and diabetes, 17:10
Patient's rights and nutrition screening, 17:5
Prevention and treatment of infection, 18:3
Repeat customers, 18:2

PURCHASING AND RECEIVING

Liquid nutritional supplements: Research shows it is best to involve patients in the selection process, 18:1
Purchasing for profit, 17:9

REIMBURSEMENT

CPT codes for MNT services, 17:6
Making a difference with MNT and diabetes, 17:10
Medicare to cover MNT services, 17:8

QUALITY AND PERFORMANCE IMPROVEMENT

Applying the PDCA model, 17:10
Back to basics, 17:12
Diabetes care: Collaboration produces evidence-based performance measurements, 18:2
Performance improvement, 17:10
The ABCs of outcomes measurement, 17:11
Suggested readings for the measurement of outcomes, 17:11

TRENDS IN THE INDUSTRY

Dietetic education: Is it keeping up with industry trends? 17:10
Expected trends in the industry: Let's peek into the future, 17:5
Facing challenges in 2001, 17:5
Our biggest potential market, 17:8

How to order BACK ISSUES

To order back issues of Health Care Food & Nutrition Focus, call (800) 638-8437.